THE NATIONAL WAR COLLEGE
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

18 March 1958

Dear Mr. Dulles:

Your letter of 26 January, accepting our invitation to address The National War College and the Industrial College in joint session, has been referred to me for administrative action.

Since you have been a guest lecturer at the college on numerous occasions, it is unnecessary for me to reiterate in detail the procedure for our morning sessions. I shall mention only that your lecture will be scheduled for 9:00 a. m., followed by the customary question and answer period and the discussion group meetings. Brief intermissions will occur immediately after your lecture and the question period. I sincerely hope you will find it possible to remain with us throughout the morning and participate in the discussions.

✓ We should like to complete the morning by having you join a small group of members from both the faculty and class for luncheon, scheduled about noon at the Officers' Club here at Fort McNair.

✓ If you have decided on the topic for your address, and it will be convenient for you to let us have this information, I would appreciate receiving it in order that it may be incorporated in our schedule for the week you will be lecturing here. Sino-Soviet Threat - 1958

Of course the privacy of the lecture program is a matter with which you are most familiar and is still jealously guarded by the college. I mention it again so that you will feel completely free to express yourself with the assurance that your remarks will be held in strictest confidence.

✓ I would appreciate your letting me know if you have any objection to the attendance of additional guests from other agencies of Government who, as you know, from time to time request the privilege of attending the lectures.

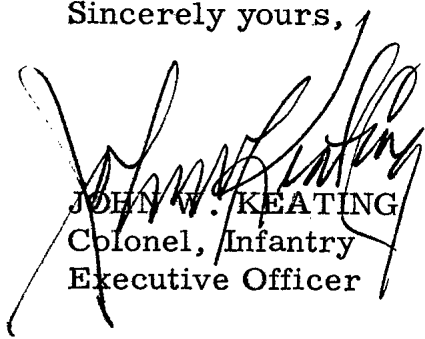

✓ We shall be happy to prepare any maps, graphs, charts, or other visual material you may require in connection with your address, if you will let us know your desires in this regard.

✓ We shall also be happy to send a car from the college, and a member of the faculty as an escort, to bring you here on the morning of your visit, if you will let me know where to send it. In order that we may have a brief visit before your lecture, may I suggest that you plan to arrive at the college about 8:40 a. m.

In the meantime, I shall look forward with much pleasure to welcoming you back to The National War College on Tuesday, 29 April.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN W. KEATING
Colonel, Infantry
Executive Officer
